

We sat quietly on the little wooden boat that rocked gently on the calm ocean. After what seemed like forever something happened. A dazzling light came up from the horizon and illuminated everything in sight. Dad jumped to his feet and whispered, "This is it." I was so confused I had never seen something so big and bright before. When I turned back round I noticed dad had put a giant ladder up to the shining light so I decided to climb it...